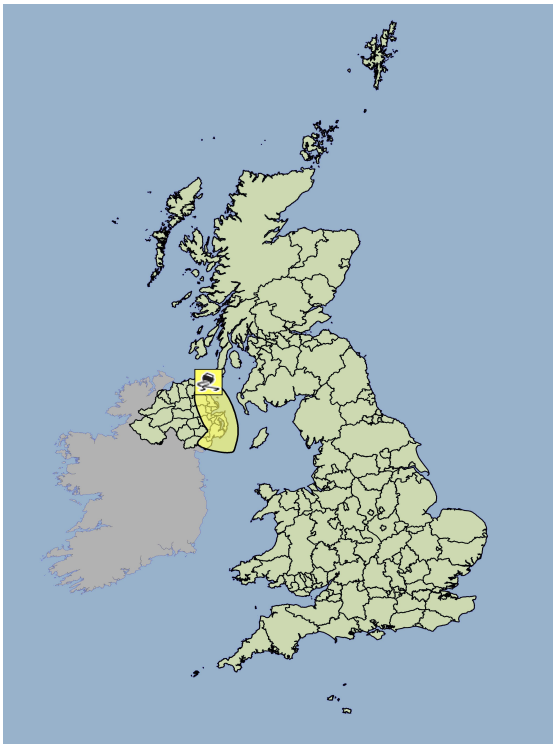
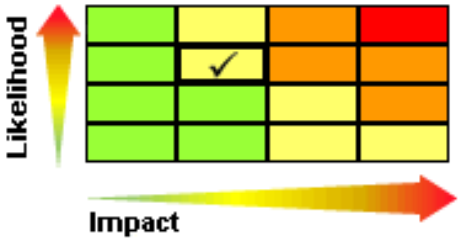
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
There is no real sign of a let-up to the cold weather. However the sleet and snow showers which fall in places this evening and early tonight, should then ease away, leaving a good deal of dry weather for at least the first half of the Easter weekend.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 22:00 on Wed, 27th Mar 2013 until 09:00 on Thu, 28th Mar 2013

Sleet and snow showers will continue for a while yet, and together with snow melt in places, will leave some surfaces in the east of Northern Ireland wet and prone to re-freezing late this evening and into Thursday morning. Additionally, there will be accumulations of 1-2 cm of snow here and there, primarily on hills.

The public are advised that travel conditions may be tricky due to either ice or snow.
